Theological Studies

Interested in the history, interpretation and reception of the Bible?

Concordia's Department of Theological Studies is the place for you!

The Department of Theological Studies at Concordia University has a special focus on Scripture: its compositional history, its interpretation and reception. At the undergraduate level and/or graduate level, we offer:

- Courses and seminars on various methods of analyzing texts,
- Courses in ancient languages,
- Introductory courses to the Bible (both Hebrew Bible and New Testament)
- More advanced courses and research seminars in both major areas of the Bible
- Courses and seminars on the Reception of Scripture in the intertestamental period (Dead Sea Scrolls) and in Apocryphal/Gnostic Literature (the Nag Hammadi Library).
- Courses and research seminars on the interpretation and reception of Scripture taking into account theological issues within their historical context. They cover both the patristic and the medieval periods.
